

UNESCO CHAIR SERIES IN COMPARATIVE EDUCATION POLICY

With just a few years left to shape a new international education agenda, the UNESCO Chair series in Comparative Education Policy invites scholars, decision-makers, and public intellectuals from the Global South to share their analyses of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and broader international agendas. How do international and national actors navigate uncertain futures, shape national developments towards their pre-defined future, or correct wrong projections that have negatively impacted present policy decisions? Moreover, how do these processes impact democratic governance, particularly in contexts where global agendas intersect with local democratic practices?

This series will navigate the tensions and inequalities inherent in the global aid architecture, discuss the gap between national priorities and global scripts in international development, and explore how these dynamics influence democratic governance in diverse contexts.

For each session, a public lecture will be held from 12:30pm to 2:00pm in S5, Maison de la Paix, and online on the first day. This will be followed by an open café at the Fab the next day at 10:00am.

DISCOVER MORE ON THIS SERIES AND REGISTER FOR THE SESSIONS

07-08
Oct

Rasha Sharaf

Professor of International and Comparative Education and Education Administration, Helwan University, Egypt

11-12
Nov

Batjargal Batkhuyag

Executive Director, Mongolian Education Alliance (MEA), Mongolia

09-10
Dec

Osmany Porto de Oliveira

Assistant Professor, Department of International Relations, Federal University of São Paulo (Unifesp), Brazil

Co-sponsored by